Seychelles and the Fisheries Transparency Initiative (FiTI)

Mr. Sven Biermann, FiTI International Secretariat

Kick-off Forum: “Transparency of fisheries in Seychelles”
30 September 2020 / Eden Island, Seychelles
Fisheries Transparency Initiative (FiTI), 2020

Agenda

FiTI at a Glance

FiTI and Seychelles

When transparency disappoints
“Lack of basic transparency could be seen as an underlying facilitator of all the negative aspects of the global fisheries sector – IUU fishing, fleet overcapacity, overfishing, ill-directed subsidies, corruption, poor fisheries management decisions, etc.”

United Nations Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO), State of the World Fisheries Report 2010
What information on marine fisheries must be provided by governments in the public domain?

How will this information be perceived as credible?
Global consensus after 2 years stakeholder discussions
The Fisheries Transparency Initiative (FiTI) provides countries for the first time with an internationally recognized framework to achieve & maintain high levels of transparency on the management of their marine fisheries sector.

- Global & Voluntary
- Not owned by a single organization / interest group
- Multi-Stakeholder Initiative
- Comprehensive, annual transparency assessments
Seychelles has committed to implement the FiTI Standard and is currently recognized as a FiTI Candidate country.

Seychelles is also the host country of the FiTI’s International headquarter.
Seychelles: FiTI Candidate country

As of September 2020

Implementing country

Country intends to implement the FiTI

Country becomes FiTI Candidate

• Complete six sign-up steps
• Submit FiTI Candidate application to FiTI International Board

Country becomes FiTI Compliant

• Publish first FiTI Report(s)
• Undergo first validation

Country stays FiTI Compliant

• Publish FiTI Reports annually
• Undergo regular validations (at least every three years)
Purpose of the FiTI Report

(1) Demonstrate whether information is published online by national authorities, is accessible and complete
Countries do not need to have complete data for every transparency requirement from the beginning.

Public authorities must disclose the information they have, and where important gaps exist, demonstrate improvements over time.

- Is information collated at all?
  - Yes
  - No

- Is information accessible?*
  - Yes
  - No
  - i.e. freely available, published online by national authorities and easy to find

- Is information complete?
  - Yes
  - No

- Is information best available?*
  - Yes
  - No

* Only applicable to a number of transparency requirements
Purpose of the FiTI Report

2) Provide a succinct summary for each transparency requirement to contribute to public debates

3) Determine recommendations to improve the publication of data in the public domain

Ownership: the FiTI Report is owned by the National Multi-Stakeholder Group

No judgment: the FiTI Report does not highlight bad fishing practices, or weaknesses in decision-making
The FiTI Report = “Travel guide”

- Shows where to find national fisheries information online (if available)
- Provides highlights (i.e. summaries) for each sight (i.e. transparency requirement)
- Outlines recommendations to improve your next experience
- Creates interest in the fisheries sector
Agenda

FiTI at a Glance

FiTI and Seychelles

When transparency disappoints
Confusion

Management of fisheries by governments
- Increase public availability and credibility of basic (aggregated) information on a country’s fisheries sector to stimulate public debates.

Activities of fishing vessels
- Provide real-time, technology-supported information on activities of fishing vessels to identify illicit behaviour.

Seafood traceability
- Increase information to trace fish from their point of capture through the entire supply chain (“from sea to plate”) to strengthen consumer confidence.

Fisheries Transparency Initiative (FiTI), 2020
When transparency disappoints

- “Data dumping” and complexity
- Propaganda & self-marketing
- Willingness of decision-makers to engage
- Lack of demand
"In Africa and around the world, fisheries play a crucial role in supporting livelihoods, providing employment and driving social economic development. However, the future of the world’s fisheries is seriously threatened and this global challenge is far greater than any country can handle on its own.

The Fisheries Transparency Initiative, with transparency and participation as its cornerstones, makes an invaluable contribution to safeguard what is amongst the most vital resources on the planet."

Kofi Annan
Chair of the Africa Progress Panel, Former Secretary-General of the United Nations and Nobel Peace Prize Laureate
